

FAC'S WINTERJAM ❄️ FEBRUARY 2-4, 2007

WinterJam is an annual Folk Arts Center winter event that encourages dancers to be musicians and musicians to be dancers. The weekend offers sessions in playing or singing folk melodies, as well as a session for learning the corresponding dances. Each member of this year's staff has the notable skill of being able to support beginning musicians while nurturing those with more experience: David Schonfeld, instrumental music; Ray Rosenstock, singing; and David Skidmore, percussion. FAC Program Director Jo Crawford will lead a workshop that integrates music and movement for both musicians and dancers.

All ages and abilities are invited to attend, and families are especially welcome. There will be opportunities to enjoy outdoor activities like sledding, snowboarding, and skating, or to relax by the fireplace.

New this year: a gathering of Recreational Folk Dance Leaders. If you teach or lead a group that does international folk dance socially, come to meet other teachers and leaders in the international folk dance community. If you are wondering how other groups are attracting new members, adapting their dances to aging bodies, or using the latest digital music devices, please consider attending. These meetings will occur Saturday afternoon during WinterJam's free time.

All activities will take place at Hulbert Outdoor Center in Fairlee, VT. Hulbert has modern warm cabins, each with 3 or 4 bedrooms (with 2 sets of bunk beds per room) and 2 full baths. A very limited number of double rooms are available, assigned on a pre-registered, first-come basis. Campers bring their own towels, pillows, and twin-sized bedding or sleeping bags. If you arrange your own alternative accommodations, you may register to join us for activities and meals, for activities only, or for Saturday afternoon and evening events.
